

The Resource Room: Combating Negative Behaviors and Outcomes At The Source

BY: SAMANTHA GOLDFARB

The Resource Room was created by compiling academic research, accounts from and toolkits made by disabled people, and support from self-advocates. The primary goal is the installation of a "resource room" at the Arc Mercer's main campus. The design allows people with intellectual and developmental disabilities to meet their sensory, emotional, and communicative needs in a safe and sufficient manner in the presence of supportive staff. An ultimate goal is to increase positive coping strategies, help relieve immediate distress, address problems and reroute dangerous behaviors that occur in the moment.
